Dear Friends,

April is a busy month not just for the oncofertility network, but also for health awareness. This month there are three health issues that garner national attention: Adolescent and Young Adult Cancer Awareness Week, Minority Cancer Awareness Week, and Infertility Awareness Week. In addition to that, we have news to share, studies to tell you about, and events to mark on your calendars!

In this issue, we'll spotlight where you can find past Virtual Grand Rounds presentations you may have missed, announce the launch of the 2012 Oncofertility Conference webpage and registration, and give you an opportunity to take part in a new cost analysis study.

As always, stop by our website to get all the latest information on cancer and fertility and check out our blog, voted one of the top 100 health blogs of 2011!

Sincerely,

The Oncofertility Consortium

PARTICIPATE: New Oncofertility Cost Analysis Study

As a provider of oncofertility services, you are invited to complete an anonymous survey, by May 31st, to characterize the clinical services offered by oncofertility practices across the nation.

The goal of this survey is to assess the breadth of oncofertility services and general costs of fertility preservation services. These results will be valuable for informing the future direction of insurance reform and public policy. We understand your time is valuable, therefore the survey is designed to take only 10 minutes.

The anonymous, secure survey can be accessed here: https://redcap.ucdenver.edu/surveys/s=3tuJnS.

If you have any questions or encounter problems when attempting to access the web-based survey, please contact: oncofert@ucdenver.edu.
